A NECESSARY EVIL—

The Property Tax — the oldest type of tax, the most universally imposed tax, the least understood tax, and the most criticised tax — is catching it in Arkansas.

A certain segment of the people have for years complained that the tax was "unjust" because it imposes a tax on landowners to furnish school funds for those who do not own property.

Then along came something called "equalization" and the yelling became louder. A law suit has been filed in Faulkner County Chancery Court seeking to set aside a reappraisal of property in a school district there. The same type of reappraisal has been held here in Independence County and the questions arise — if it ruled out in Faulkner, what about Independence?

A hearing was conducted August 1 in Little Rock by the Committee To Study Public School Finance and the Property Tax. Several who testified at that hearing warned that Arkansas should begin searching for new ways to finance public schools.

Senator Clarence Bell said, "Recent court decisions justify the assumption that Arkansas' public school finance system will be declared unconstitutional."

Most who testified gave suggestions (too numerous to list) on how to change the state's tax system. One of those who forwarded a letter to the Committee was from Batesville.

William K. Fraser suggested that the Supreme Court would strike down the Property Tax within the next few years, but listed several things that could be accomplished to make the present system more efficient until that time.

Locally, Mr. Fraser suggested the following:

—Consolidate into one county-wide school district thus abolishing all local superintendents and establishing one truly County Superintendent.

—Establish one Senior High School at Batesville for the entire county.

—Establish ninth grade schools at Southside and Newark.

—Establish sixth grade schools at Desha, Cord, Charlotte, Oil Trough, Cushman, and Pleasant Plains.

—Make the district "independent" with its own assessor-collector.

Independence County Tax Assessor Reuben Norris says until something is changed by law, his office has no choice but to do the best it can under the system.

Ice Age is reported coming

NORWICH, England (AP) — A new Ice Age is creeping over the Northern Hemisphere, and the rest of this century will grow colder and colder, a British expert on climate has claimed.

Prof. Hubert Lamb, director of climate research at the University of East Anglia, had a few comforting thoughts in an interview Sunday: "The full impact of the new Ice Age will not be upon us for another 10,000 years and even then it will not be as severe as the last great glacial period. "We are past the best of the interglacial period which happened between 7,000 and 3,000 years ago," he continued. "Ever since then we have been on a downhill float regarding temperature. There may be a few upward fluctuations from time to time but these are more than offset by the general downward trend." Lamb said temperatures had been slowly dipping for the past 20 years.

"We are on a definite downhill course for the next two centuries," he declared. "The last 20 years of this century will be progressively colder. After that the climate may warm up again but only for a short period of decades."

The last great ice age took place about 60,000 years ago and was the sixth over a period of about a million years. The great ice sheets covered most of the British Isles and in America covered what are now New York City, Cincinnati, St. Louis and Kansas City. The ice was at least 5,000 feet thick.

"I don't think it will be quite as serious this time," Lamb said. "But there will be a lot of glaciers on high ground which do not exist at present."

A jolt to bolts out of blue

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Scientists are giving a jolt to bolts out of the blue.

"They say they have been successful in field experiments in suppressing the destructive force of lightning."

The second phase of experiments to control this fearsome phenomenon recently was concluded in Colorado and produced encouraging results, they added.

Ultimately, the ability to suppress lightning would help reduce forest fires, 80 per cent of which are caused by lightning, Dr. Heinz Kasemir, project leader, said in a telephone interview Monday.

Kasemir and five colleagues from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration seeded thunderstorms with metallized nylon fibers — chaff — and succeeded in neutralizing storm electrical fields. The chaff is gossamer fine, about 4 inches long. It cannot be used in areas where there is airplane traffic because it interferes with radar.

For this reason, it is impractical as a suppressant over urban areas, Kasemir said.

Kasemir and his colleagues suppressed lightning by increasing the conductivity of the atmosphere with the chaff, thus making it impossible for storm electric fields to develop lightning potential.

'Creeping' with H. L. Hunt

DALLAS (AP) — H. L. Hunt, one of the world's richest men, popped a date into his mouth and smiled around it. "I'm a crank about creeping," he said.

Creeping? "You get down on all fours and walk on your hands and knees," the 83-year-old health fan explained. He promptly dropped down to the floor of his antique dining room to demonstrate.

"You see, you look at your little finger of each hand as you walk the hand forward and that turns your head side to side. It's natural exercise, like when you were an ape," he said.

He chuckled and his wife, Ruth, looked concerned. Hunt was creeping around the breakfast table so fast the photographer couldn't focus on him. He didn't even put on his creeping knee pads, just dropped to the floor in his blue pin stripe suit.

"She doesn't creep," Hunt said of his wife when he returned to his breakfast plate. He munched grapes, pecans, dates and an apricot, and drank fruit juices and bouillon.

"Creeping is probably the second best exercise in the world next to swimming. It's perfect," Hunt said. "I creep about two to three minutes a day, several times a day," he explained. He also has yoga lessons twice a week and maintains a strict health food regimen of pure foods.

"Ya-hoo," he called and an assistant came in with a date for everyone at the table. Hunt, a leading oil producer and food processing magnate, munched a pecan himself and said, "I used to be the world's number one soft shell pecan grower. I suppose I still am. I eat them instead of meat."

At 83, Hunt tends to ramble from talking about health food to another of his interests: his sons, his famous checker playing ability, his long crusade against Communism.

"I'll be 84 February 17th. The Soviets have a picture I've seen of a man they say is 167. I think I'll manage to live to as ripe an age as their man."

And then he took his wife's arm and headed off to work.

FOOTPRINTS

By GEORGE SMITH

Football action is in full swing, and the thoughts of pigskin heroics brings back fond memories of Big 6 and the "shotgun house" play.

Big 6 was a form of football played by Class B schools in Northeast Texas in which there were only six men on a side. The rules were simple, any man was eligible for a pass, anybody could run with the ball, and catch-as-catch-can rules were strictly enforced.

Now being a scrawny freshman, I was an unlikely candidate for a position on the Avery High School football team, but I was blessed with a pair of hands as big as ping pong paddles and the ability to catch a football from any position, angle or altitude within a 10-yard radius. I was a shoo-in for the end position. (Only nine men went out for the team originally, then when hay-cutting time was over, six more showed up.)

We were a real football team...we had uniforms and everything. Our coach was a limp-wristed physics teacher who was recruited by the principal because he had an off period the last hour, and, the principal told the school board "It'll help make a man of him."

It didn't, but never mind. Anyway, we practiced like a crack legion of Trojans for our first game, an assumed easy victory over the Clarksville "B" team. The game was set for our field, which was actually an old pasture across the road from the school, on a Friday afternoon. Half of Avery turned out, and the cheerleader for our team handed out the official game programs and roster that she had cranked off the school's memograph machine. It read like this (parenthesis mine):

STARTING LINEUP
CENTER—Melvin Runyan (Melvin the Echo) 210-lbs.
L. GUARD—Roy Phelps (Roy-Boy) 175-lbs.
R. GUARD—Ronald Braden (Mr. Atlas) 145-lbs.

END—George Smith (Skeeter) 111-lbs.

HALFBACK—Charles Michie (Cowboy) 160-lbs.

QUARTERBACK—Joe Hedgecock (Butterball) 170-lbs.

Also at the bottom of the program was selected yells the cheerleader planned to use during the course of the game. My favorite went like this: "Watermelon, Watermelon, Watermelon rind, look at the scoreboard and see who's behind."

Back to the game. We wanted to time our entrance on the field to demoralize the opposition, and thus waited until they had done 45 minutes of workouts, before we left the schoolyard, and made a wild, screaming dash across Highway 82. Except for the fact that Melvin the Echo almost got creamed by a red-balling Tom's Peanut Truck, our rush to the field, I thought, was suitably impressive.

We took a few minutes to warm up, then Joe Bob Willard, the referee, called the two teams together in the center of the field. He tried to say a few words about sportsmanship and good, clean fun, but he couldn't be heard above the growling and teeth-grashing so he gave it up.

Clarksville kicked off, and I scooped up the ball on our 25 and was promptly knocked back to our 24.

The first huddle went something like this:

BUTTERBALL: All right, you guys, let's get 'em. Skeeter, you go long and I'll hit you or keep it and run. Roy-Boy, if I can't hit Skeeter or run, I lateral to you, so you watch out. Let's go.

ROY-BOY: Do you want me to block? MELVIN the Echo: Do you want me to block?

BUTTERBALL: Everybody block! Apparently, however, nobody blocked because Butterball ended up on our 10 with all six Clarksville players trying to rip off his jersey.

The Mayflower Compact: 'Just and Equal' laws

 On September 16, 1620 a group of 102 Pilgrims sailed from Plymouth, England to find a new land, a new free world.

On November 21, 1620 their ship, the Mayflower, anchored at what is now known as Provincetown, Mass.

Before anyone went ashore, the Pilgrim leaders persuaded almost everyone aboard to sign an agreement since known as the "Mayflower Compact". It was the 'first' plan for self determining government ever put forth in America.

Those who signed it agreed to set up a government that would make "equal and just laws" . . . and they promised to obey such laws, whenever the leaders decided upon them.

And that's how it all began, 352 years ago.

East's three-heart bid really jammed South. He might well have raised his partner's diamond bid but South had learned that the spade suit should be bid whenever possible so South tried three spades.

North looked at his fine hand to make sure that he really had those good spades and then came out with what was felt was an ill chosen Blackwood no-trump. A four-heart cue bid would have been better.

South bid five clubs to show his total lack of aces and North went into a huddle. Finally he looked over at us and remarked, "You told me never to use Blackwood unless I intended to bid a slam if our side held three aces." Then he chirped six spades.

South won the heart lead with dummy's ace and cashed dummy's ace and king of trumps. East showed out but this merely caused South to pause for a second before leading a club to his king.

West took his ace and led a third trump but South was ready with the right medicine. He won in his hand; ruffed his second heart; entered his hand with a diamond; drew West's last trump and claimed the rest of the tricks since he could discard his deuce of clubs on dummy's long diamond.

We had to break our rule for kibitzers and applaud North and South for bidding and making a slam that very few experts would find their way to after East's three-heart preempt.

THE GENERATION RAP

—by Helen and Sue Bottel

When Youthful Egos Clash...
HELEN AND SUE:

Don and I have been going together for four months. We're both nearly 16. I can't single date yet, but he comes over almost every day. He isn't wild or anything.

A couple of days ago we went for a walk. Some of his friends drove by, stopped to talk, and offered him a beer.

I told Don before he accepted it that I wouldn't allow drinking at my house and I'd send him home, so he had a choice of staying with me the rest of the evening or drinking the beer.

He took the beer, and the guys drove off. Then he said he wouldn't come to my house again until I called and asked him back. I told him it was his place to apologize and he left.

Later that evening he called me and apologized for drinking the beer but said I'd still have to call and ask him over before he'd return.

Should I? I think it's his place to ask if he can come see me, and my mother agrees. I told her the whole story. What do you two think?—MAR

MARY:

At first I agreed with you and your mother, but then I thought: look, Don "gave" a little by apologizing, so perhaps you should give some too. He might feel he's not wanted at your house (especially if he thinks your parents heard the story).

Let him know there are no hard feelings, even if you DO have to dial his number.—SUE

DEAR M.:

Think back: You darn near forced Don to take that beer when you threatened, (in front of his friends) "I'll send you home if you do!" Had he turned it down, they'd have labeled him "Mary's Little Lamb" from here on out—with a ring in his nose yet.

He apologized for drinking...It's your turn now.

When you ask him over, let him know you understand how a guy feels when his girl puts him on the spot.—HELEN

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

I am a 12-year-old girl who smokes. Some older people think this is really terrible, but they smoke so why not me?

I have at the most seven cigarettes a day and sometimes I don't have any. If I don't inhale, could I get lung cancer? And can I get cancer of the mouth from smoking—S.Z.

DEAR S.:

First question: Adults think it's terrible to see a 12-year-old lighting up because they don't want you hooked, as they are—they know how hard it is to break the habit.

Second question: Chances for lung cancer are less if you don't inhale—BUT few people continue with cigarettes unless they inhale.

Third question: Your biggest worry isn't cancer (which may or may not develop after years of smoking). It's starting a habit you'll bitterly regret someday. Why don't you get smart?—HELEN

DEAR S.:

Ask yourself, "Why do I smoke?" And be honest. Do you really like cigarettes? Do you need them? Are you showing off to the kids? Are you "getting even" with your parents? Do they make you feel grown up? Help nervousness?

Then read the warning on the package, and ask one more question: "Are they really worth the risk? Sugarless gum tastes better and isn't habit forming.—SUE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — This could be the season Coach Dick Nolan's San Francisco 49ers reach maturity, and he thinks that will mean a trip to the Super Bowl.

Of the team's 22 probable starters, 16 have between three and seven years of pro football experience.

"That's no accident," says Nolan, who puts a premium on experience and thinks most of his players are approaching the best days of their football lives.

"Jack White (49ers' personnel boss) has done a great job and we've got a good scouting system. Most of our recent high draft picks have helped us already," Nolan says.

The relatively young 49ers have been stopped one step from the Super Bowl by the Dallas Cowboys the last two seasons, losing in the National Football Conference championship games by 17-10 two years ago and 14-3 last season.

Among the 49ers indispensable old pros are quarterback John Brodie and tackle Len Rodeo on offense, tackle Charlie Krueger and cornerback Jimmy Johnson on defense.

Brodie, 37, is the oldest of the 49ers and the most important. His otherwise good 1971 season was marred by a career-high 24 interceptions, some of them fatal in the team's five losses.

In Gene Washington and tight end Ted Kwalick, Brodie has two of the finest young receiver in the National Football League. Both are fourth-year pros, and they combined for 98 catches worth 1,540 yards last season.

Dick Wither will probably retain the other starting receiving job. Top rookie pick Terry Beasley was expected to challenge but limped through the preseason period with a series of injuries.

Arkansas and Ferguson choice of conference

DALLAS (AP) — Arkansas and senior quarterback Joe Ferguson were unanimous choices as the best in the Southwest Conference in the annual poll by writers and broadcasters on the 23rd annual SWC press tour concluded Wednesday.

Arkansas got all 23 votes as the football champion for 1972 and Ferguson was the unanimous selection as offensive player of the year.

Cats beat Arkadelphia 28-7 in 7AA clash

Last night at Hammons Stadium, the Hope Bobcats continued in winning ways as they came back to wax the Arkadelphia Badgers 28-7 in a 7AA conference clash.

The first half saw Hope plagued by mistakes deep in Badger territory which wiped out near scoring drives. But the worst one was a fumble recovery at Hope's 27 yd. line which set up the lone score of the first half as Mack Harris broke 24 yds. to give Arkadelphia a 7-0 lead after the pat.

But soon after the second half began, symptoms of mistakes began to show up on the Badgers as Hope's Jimmy Smith grabbed a fumble on the visitors 21 yd. line. Runs of 4 and 9 yards and a penalty set up a 3 yd. to run by David Huddleston, Paul Bazar's pat was good and the score was all locked up at 7-7.

Hope's second score capped off a 52 yard drive as David Johnson crashed in from 14 yards out. Bazar's pat was good and Hope led 14-7.

When asked about his running talent, Johnson replied, "I say a prayer" and this became evident as he made a wall of Badgers look like crepe paper and scampered 61 yards for his second score of the outing. Bazar's pat was good and Hope held a 21-7 edge.

Hope's final tally came when Hope's biggest "little" man Eddie Rickey Brown intercepted a wesley kluckpass and flew 61 yards to pay dirt. Paul Batar once again added the pat and Hope had their win again.

No losses 28-7.

Never have I seen a team operate any better on the old cliché, "one for all, and all for one" and by this token they're number one".

The cats face another conference test next week as they travel to Camden to take on Fairview's Cardinals.

ASU backs put to test Saturday

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Beware David Hines, Vince Ancell and Craig Johnson.

Hines, Ancell and Johnson are the three deep backs in the Arkansas State University defense and they may get a thorough test Saturday when the Indians play Eastern New Mexico at Portales, N.M.

The Greyhounds like to pass. Last year, their quarterback was the leading passer in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics. Last week, Don Stravlo completed 14 of 22 passes in the Greyhounds' 12-10 victory over Panhandle Oklahoma State.

"They will put it upstairs," says ASU assistant coach Tim Keane who scouted the Greyhounds last week. "He'll drop back and throw or he can sprint out and put pressure on the defense because he runs well. He has a good arm and a quick release.

"They run five people into the passing lanes and get good protection for their quarterback," Keane said.

He said he expects Stravlo to pass even more Saturday than he did last week.

"The thing that always scares you about a passing team is that if they get a hot hand they can beat you and you can't do anything about it," he said.

ASU Coach Bill Davidson. ASU opened its season last week, losing 27-17 to highly regarded McNeese State. After viewing the game film, the ASU coaches said there were many encouraging spots.

One of the major problems seemed to be persuading the quarterbacks in the Wishbone-T to attack the defenders at the corners. This may come with time.

ASU played Eastern New Mexico for the first time in 1969 and came away with a 53-20 victory. The spread may not be as large, but the winner should be the same.

ASU 24, EASTERN NEW MEXICO 7.

Last week's percentage was .857.

Here are other predictions involving Arkansas college teams:

Arkansas Tech 17, Northeast Oklahoma 14.

Southern State 10, Livingston, Ala., 7

Henderson 23, Mississippi College 14.

Delta State 14, U-A Monticello 7.

State College of Arkansas 14, Central Missouri 13.

Harding 21, Millsaps 7.

U-A Pine Bluff 34, Mississippi Valley 27.

The 'new' Jack Nicklaus: unfat, unhated, unexcelled

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Long articles, including a doctoral thesis, had been written on the one-time infamous phenomenon of Jack Nicklaus. All that is past, buried in a bunker.

No longer do great segments of golf galleries deplore Nicklaus' victories. No longer do they hold up signs in front of sand traps which read, "Put it here, Jack." No longer do they hiss, "Fat Jack," as though he were the oval villain of a rasslin' show.

"Get 'em Jack," they cry now, swarming and tumbling after him, then halting in a strange freeze as he readies to stroke, then swarm and tumble some more.

After a round he plods gracefully through a sea of autograph seekers, his blond head and hand bobbing as he scribbles his name with an almost desperate flourish.

He answers the cliché questions of a novice female radio reporter.

"Are you satisfied with your round?" she asks.

"I think anyone would be satisfied with a 67, don't you?" he smiles, seems to restrain himself from being as crisp as in earlier years.

"What's your secret of success?"

Patently, with a little laugh: Well, uh, I don't know, practicing the shots that I'm having trouble with."

Then he makes his way with help of a marshal through a little-used side entrance of the country club. Old men with varicose veins are lying naked and unstrapping on rubbing tables. Steam is coming from a nearby steam room. A purplish light is seen from a sun room. The contrast from the luxuriant green of the course is stark.

"Gotta come this way to avoid the rest of those crowds," says Nicklaus, above the click of his cleats through this bogus morgue.

"I use this entrance all the time to get to the locker room. I'm not kidding when I tell you that sometimes it's impossible to get a minute alone." He looks at you with direct blue eyes, saying that of course life could be a helluva lot worse.

Nicklaus, besides being possibly the finest golfer ever, is growing in popularity. This is not to say that he has the nation by its heart-strings, as Palmer did (and does). But most folks were rooting for Nicklaus to win that Grand Slam. (He had already won the Masters and U.S. Open this year.)

That he lost the British Open by a stroke, after coming from six strokes back on the final day, may have endeared him to fans even more than if he had actually triumphed. This was evidenced in the PGA championship at Oakland Hills. Nicklaus, playing with a bad finger, seemed to have had his inner fires quenched after failing in Britain to gain the third leg of the Slam. Yet the PGA crowds were behind him like an avalanche.

Satisfying, says this son of a druggist, to be, at 32, after 11 years on the pro tour, after having come out of Columbus, Ohio, to become a multi-millionaire, to be widely accepted, finally.

JACK NICKLAUS in 1965, was pudgy and moping. The new Nicklaus jumps for joy, right, before an enthusiastic gallery.
